Tyus Battle: 12 points, 4 rebounds (0 off, 4 def), 2 assists, 2 turnovers, 2 steals, 0 blocks, 4-12 FGs, 2-8 3PTs, 2-2 FTs in 39 min

Report:

- (+) impressive physical appearance and athleticism
- (+) 2nd gear available offensively – seen in transition at the rim
- (+) Quick lateral movement on defense
- (0) poised and non-emotional, needs to communicate more on both ends
- (-) little offensive movement (no off-ball cuts)
- (-) poor offensive creator, tends to pass around the 3 pt line
- (-) relies on a poor 3 point shot to carry his game, shoots on the way down

Summary:

Battle's offensive arsenal is shallow and could use development. He spends most of the time floating around the three-point line, with an occasional turn for a straight line drive at the basket. His .418 FG% is discouraging, as he settled for pull-up jumpers instead of using his frame to finish at the rim. In transition, he is impressive due to his length and speed, but he did fail to convert at the bucket on one occasion. He relies heavily on his three-point shot, which is in need of form-correction. He knocked down a corner three and a three from the right wing, but the six misses (some of which were open looks, others forced) show his reliance on an average tool. Defensively, he showed quick lateral movement, and he fared well in the zone. It was a poor shooting game for both teams, and the Syracuse zone may have masked his ability to show matchup defense. If Tyus can learn to use his speed and frame to generate more offense and get to the bucket, he will be a much more attractive draft prospect. At this point, a refined three point shot and improved communication could lead to his being a rotational 3-and-D prospect at the next level.
